

SCHOOL BOARD WILL DEMAND PROBE OF ATTACK ON PLAYERS

Unless Uniontown Authorities Take Action, Prosecutions Will Follow.

BOYS TELL OF THE ASSAULT

Superintendent Scott is Told That Connellville Will Insist Upon Punishment of the Offenders; Proof of Conspiracy at Hand, is the Claim.

Action that may result in the arrest of Uniontown High School football players for assault upon members of the Connellville High School squad, following Saturday's victory over Uniontown, will be taken by the local school board.

Superintendent Scott, of the Uniontown schools, called Superintendent Stanley E. Ash in course of a special board meeting in the High School building, this morning, and was advised of this decision:

"If you will investigate, all right. If you will not, the school board says: 'Prosecute.' We can prove there was a conspiracy to injure the Connellville players."

Aroused over revengeful attacks upon and the severe beating of George Meyer, Bernard McPartland and Ralph Moore in the Uniontown High School gymnasium, when the Connellville squad attempted dressing after the game, the Connellville school board met at 9:30 o'clock this morning. President H. E. Youngkin presided, with Directors W. W. Smith, G. H. Baker, C. W. Hays, A. W. Bishop, Lloyd J. Shaw and J. H. Davidson, and Superintendent of Schools Ash and Principal B. J. Smith present.

President Youngkin announced the intention to investigate the conduct of the Uniontown players on Saturday. Superintendent Ash said: "It is a serious situation which should be threshed out at any cost. Mr. Smith and I must go to Uniontown, and we want to know what demands we should make of the Uniontown board. Mr. Scott said he would find the persons and settle with them, or place them in our hands."

Wearing bandages and carrying scars and bruises, members of the football team were called from class rooms to testify as to the actions of the Uniontown players. Solicitor H. G. May, before testimony was begun, expressed belief that the situation was Uniontown's to settle, but Director Shaw objected, saying:

"We should not and wait for Uniontown."

Charles McCormick, right end of the Connellville High School team, was the first witness from the squad. "I'll get it," was the first thing said to me," declared McCormick. "That was before the game. Afterward, Charles Crook came to me and said, 'You and I must go to Uniontown, and we want to know what demands we should make of the Uniontown board. Mr. Scott said he would find the persons and settle with them, or place them in our hands.'"

With a scarlet splotch covering his left cheek and side of his nose, where he had been hit with an Indian club, Meyer took a chair.

In the game the only thing I could do was to keep from getting plugged. Afterward, just as I sat inside the door leading to the gymnasium, I met a fellow named 'Shake, old kid.' Then he hit me."

Several of the boys testified to the use of profanity by Uniontown players throughout the game. "Coach Smith said something like, 'You and I must go to Uniontown, and we want to know what demands we should make of the Uniontown board. Mr. Scott said he would find the persons and settle with them, or place them in our hands.'"

With a bandage on his head, Ralph Moore, right tackle, said: "Every time I went through the line, Nicholson, my opponent, struck my hands or knee into my face. In the gymnasium the first thing I heard was Meyer crying, 'They're killing me.' I started to pick him up, and they hit me."

His head bandaged, Bernard McPartland said:

"When I went through the gymnasium door, I heard someone say, 'You're a fellow.' Another said, 'No, it isn't.' Then I felt a blow upon my ankle and another upon my knee. After that it was a fight."

Clyde Jones said: "Everybody, apparently, was hitting me. The Uniontown players gathered about me before the game and told me I would last about two minutes. Several of them came in and wanted to 'start something.' Through the game they slugged and kicked me."

Superintendent Ash said Uniontown did not challenge Connellville. "Smith said the Connellville squad and he were preparing to cheer Uniontown, when McCormick ran up and told of Brock's warnings of trouble."

Jacob Wellins and Frank Long, substitutes, testified they were hit by thrown dumbbells. Long said he was hit upon the head. Director Shaw declared Uniontown police knew Brock was breathing, but made no effort to prevent the outbreak.

CONNELLVILLE AUTOISTS "TRAPPED" IN UNIONTOWN

Given Notice to Pay Fines for Exceeding the Speed Limit on Returning From Game.

Connellville automobilists ran into a "speed trap" in Uniontown on their return from the game Saturday. Carrying out the general policy of making things unpleasant for the visiting delegation, watch was kept on car numbers later. According to the drivers, the speed limit was placed at anything beyond a crawl.

Among the drivers notified to pay $10 to Burgess McGraw was Funeral Director C. G. Mitchell.

"To say I exceeded the speed limit is absurd," Mr. Mitchell declared this morning. "I traveled well under the limit and was particularly careful not to do any fast driving, either within the borough limits of Uniontown, or without."

Other drivers were likewise notified. It is probable that some speed limits were by the board during the evening as cars carrying the players had to get the boys home with us little delay as possible. Several of them required medical attention and have been necessary, they having received only temporary care in Uniontown.

LOSES HIS HAND IN A CORN HUSKER: COMES TO HOSPITAL

Mill Run Man Victim of Painful Accident on Saturday; Other Patients.

Three new patients were admitted to the Cottage State hospital over Sunday. Wade Newell, 20 years old, a well known young man of Mill Run, was the victim of a serious accident Saturday. While at work his finger on the left hand became entangled in a corn husking machine. He jerked his hand loose but it was severed at the wrist.

Walter Weaver, colored, 22 years old, was struck by a train while waiting along the B. & O. tracks Saturday night. He was brought to Connellville and removed to the hospital where part of his foot was amputated. His home is at Broad Ford.

Adam Wallace, colored, 28, came to the hospital Saturday night for treatment of an injury to the eye. He claimed someone walked up to him on the street and struck him in the eye. He left the hospital yesterday.

STRUCK BY FAST TRAIN AT SMITHTON, MAN IS KILLED

Jacob Creek Resident Steps in Front of Flyer and Succumbs to Fractured Skull.

Alexander Lee, 59 years old, a widely known resident of Jacob Creek, was struck by a B. & O. passenger train at Smithton last evening about 6 o'clock, and killed instantly. His skull was fractured. Mr. Lee was waiting for a train to return home. Hearing an approaching train, which he believed to be his, he started to cross the track. It happened to be a fast train, making no stop at Smithton.

The body was removed to funeral director L. L. Thompson's parlors at Smithton and prepared for burial. Today it was taken to Lee home at Jacob Creek from which place the funeral will take place Wednesday afternoon.

SNOW FALLS OVER THE COKE REGION; WINTER ON THE WAY

Mercury Takes a Tumble Since Saturday and Chilly Winds Blow.

The first real snow, heralding the approach of winter, fell last night, covering rooftops and the ground about half an inch. Saturday's bright day was followed by clouds and chilly winds, the turn for colder coming that night.

Sunday morning brought a dull sky and signs of snow. Several flurries fell during the day, but the heavy fall did not occur until after 1 o'clock this morning.

COUNSEL FOR COKE PRODUCERS URGE A FREIGHT RATE CUT

Interstate Commerce Commission Hears Arguments in Washington.

THE RAILROADS ARE ATTACKED

Wade H. Ellis Bitterly Arraigns Defendant Carriers for Discriminating Against Connellville Region; Transportation Charges are Under Fire.

Special to The Courier.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—Arguments were heard today before the Interstate Commerce Commission in the three cases of the Connellville Coke Producers' Association, the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Company and the Wisconsin Steel Company against various railroads charging excessive freight rates on coke and discrimination in favor of other regions. The session was largely attended.

Among the prominent coke producers on hand were Harry Whyte, president of the Connellville Coke Producers' Association, J. P. Brennan, J. W. Bennett, Charles B. Lehart and H. L. Robinson, all of Uniontown with the exception of Mr. Brennan; Harry Moore, traffic manager of the Republic Iron & Steel Company, James Keeney of Youngstown; J. W. Holloman and 15 attorneys, including Wade H. Ellis, N. B. James, W. A. Glasgow, Jr., and C. B. Ellis for the complainants; George Stewart Patterson for the Pennsylvania railroad; W. A. Barker for the Baltimore & Ohio; Fred D. McKenny and others for the defendants. P. J. Crogan appeared for the Preston County Coke Company, intervenors.

The opening argument was made by Wade H. Ellis for the coke producers in the coke business and shipping to Philadelphia, Baltimore, Pittsburgh and other points east and Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Chicago, Buffalo and elsewhere north and west.

Mr. Ellis stated that the question has been before the commission for several years and that the only way it can be justly settled is by a reduction of rates. He declares that refusal to reduce rates would be a reversal of the position taken by the commission in former cases.

He declared that the earnings on transportation of coke yield from 50 to 600 per cent more on a ton mile, car mile or train mile basis than the average earnings of all other commodities on the same road.

Those rates, he declared, involved specific, direct, undisputed and undenied discriminations. He pointed out on the charts on the high board a railroad of 20 cents more from Connellville than from Fairmont to Philadelphia, although the distance is 50 miles less. Youngstown rates based on cost of service, he stated, show a profit of 50 per cent on a ton mile basis, that the rate should not exceed 35 or 40 cents. Chicago rates are all out of line, he insisted, and as they have not been justified, should be reduced by default.

He insisted that no transportation reason can be shown that justified discrimination against Youngstown and in favor of Fairmont to the east. That the reduction of the rate opposed by the Preston county Company will mean a discrimination in favor of the intervenors' defendant was Ellis' claim, and he insisted that the witnesses failed to justify the lower rate to the West Virginia concern.

Seven reasons are given for the necessity for the reduction of rates. First, they are unjust by comparison with other rates; unjust by comparison with coal rates, unjust as compared with the rates on coke and because they are out of proportion to cost of service, and, finally, because by agreement among the railroads, the Connellville region has been discriminated against in virtually every instance in favor of other competing districts.

Attorney Ellis declared the defendants have attempted to challenge the statistics submitted by the complainants not by refuting them, but merely by treating them as mere conclusions. He declared that one member of the commission has asserted that facts cannot be disputed by ridicule.

"The complainants have been more than fair," said Mr. Ellis. "Not a single fact has been made which has not been justified; facts have been presented without fear of criticism. Rates must be reduced. It has been urged that there would be a disturbance of all rates in the Connellville district, but nothing has been shown to prove that."

William Rand appeared in behalf of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Company to challenge the value of the coke to the Valley furnaces, which produce about 5,000,000 tons of steel a year, and of which the Youngstown company produces about one-third.

Mr. Rand declared an increase in rate followed each protest to the railroads and the steel men had been told to refrain from competition in order that they might increase prices and be able to pay the freight toll. He urged that the main question is the cost of service to the carrier which, in this instance, is only 20 cents in the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie was 22 to 24 cents on the Pennsylvania. He declared that while the defendants challenged the cost figures submitted by the complainants, they not only failed to submit figures to support their contention of a higher cost of

SNYDER-SMITH WEDDING SOCIETY EVENT SATURDAY

Elaborate Ceremony and Reception Attended by Many Guests.

ORCHIDS USED IN PROFUSION

The Rev. James E. Reilly of Oil City, Roads the Service Assisted by the Rev. Ellis B. Burgess—Pair Leave for the East on an Extended Tour.

Trinity Lutheran Church was the scene of a large and brilliant wedding Saturday evening at 8 o'clock when Miss Joan Roberts Snyder, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Province Snyder, became the bride of James Henry Smith, of Dawson and Morgantown, W. Va. It was the first large wedding solemnized in the handsome new edifice and was witnessed by a large delegation of Connellville, Uniontown, New Castle, Pittsburgh, Morgantown society, and many friends from distant.

As the guests assembled a musical program was rendered by Mrs. B. P. Wallace, organist, and John Kierle, violinist, playing "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice," "O Love Land Thine Aid," "Gaily of Hand," "Circles of Life," "Gondola," "Romeo and Juliet," "Comptin Le Pays," from Mignon. An unusual and impressive feature in connection with the nuptial music was the rendition of the bridal chorus from the Lutheran church choir.

The bride party entered to the strains of the same chorus on the organ and violin. First came the ushers, Lehigh Morris, of Pittsburgh, Edgar of Norfolk and Cincinnati, a gain a partial victory in their demand for more wages, under the award announced yesterday by the Board of Arbitration. It grants certain increased compensation and improved working conditions, but holds that a general increase of wages on all roads is not warranted upon the basis of the evidence presented.

Those hands that on some roads and for certain classes of service the compensation is too small, and therefore introduce into the award the principle of a minimum wage for the entire district. The award dates back to May 1 last and will stand for one year.

To place a railroad strike hereafter beyond the realms of probability the board advocates the creation of Federal and State Wage Commissions. From the suggestions of Morris, the representative of the engineers on the board dissents.

Following are the more important of the engineers:

In passenger service a minimum wage was granted of $4.50 for 100 miles or less; and an overtime rate of 50 cents per hour with an average speed of 20 miles per hour. The engineers asked $4.10 and $4.60 per day of 100 miles, according to the size of the engine and the number of miles run. The overtime rate of 70 cents per hour after five hours.

In through freight service, a minimum was granted at $4.75 per day of 100 miles or less, with overtime provided for at the rate of 50 cents per hour. The engineers requested rates of $5.25, $5.50 and $7.75 per day of 100 miles, according to the size of the engine; and $7.50 for mail engines; the same rates to apply to mine runs, work week, help-out, and other special runs.

In local freight service 25 cents additional to the through freight rates was granted. This met the full request of the engineers.

In switching service a minimum of $4.10 for ten hours or less was granted. The engineers asked $4.50 per day of ten hours in switching service and for belt line service.

All existing rates higher than the minimum granted by the board are continued in force.

In a statement today, by President Daniel Willard of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, who represented the railroads on the arbitration board, is indicative as to the future.

"We accepted the award as a whole does not signify my approval of all the findings in detail," said President Willard. He added that "although the award is not such as the railroads had hoped for," nor such as the fact justified by the facts, "they now accept without question the conclusion which was reached."

HIGH SCHOOL BOYS DEFEAT UNIONTOWN; ATTACKED BY CLUBS

Disgruntled Losers Batter Heads of Players and Four are Injured.

Connellville Boys Roughly Handled Upon Entering Dressing Rooms Following Contest; Rosters Badly Treated on Way to Cars After Game.

Four Connellville High School football players were injured in a brutal attack made upon them in the gymnasium of the Uniontown High School following Saturday's game, in which Connellville was victorious, 6 to 0. Armed with Indian clubs, which they procured in the gymnasium, members of the Uniontown team awaited the visiting players and as they entered from the playing field, began hitting them. One boy was knocked unconscious and another felled as he attempted to pick up the first victim. A third boy, his head gashed by a blow, fought back, which enabled the Uniontown adherents, with usual disregard for facts, to "explain" the incident as being a "fight" between the players.

The Uniontown players began the trouble. While several of their number tossed the clubs from the main floor to the balcony, others used them to batter the Connellville players as they entered from the field. More serious consequences were averted when Principal B. E. Smith brought a policeman into the building to protect two players who had been marked as victims. The entrance of the cop checked further hostilities. The officer of the law "investigated" but failed to locate the culprits.

The Connellville rosters ran a gauntlet on their way to the street cars. Not only were they treated badly along the streets, but after they boarded the cars, they were made targets. The windows of one West Penn car were shattered by clubs and missiles hurled in the direction of the Connellville rosters. That several of the girls escaped serious injury was remarkable.

That the Uniontown players planned to "get" at least two of the Connellville boys, regardless of the outcome of the game, is the statement of one of the Uniontown boys, according to Principal Smith and a score of others. Charles Froek, who played brilliantly for Uniontown, not only refused to participate in the disgraceful affair, but warned Principal Smith of the plot.

"They are after McCormick and Jones," Froek told Mr. Smith. The Principal called a policeman and had him escort those players into the building. They entered to see clubs flying, two of the smaller Connellville boys being pursued around the gymnasium by a small army of Uniontown players, scrubs and regulars. The entrance of the policeman stopped the riot, but the damage had already been done.

George Meyer was the most seriously injured. He had been hurt during the game and for the last five minutes of play went through sheer nerve. Meyer was in a state of collapse when he entered the gymnasium, one Uniontown player grasped his arms and another belabored him over the head with a club. He fell down several steps. Ralph Moore, who rushed to his aid, was struck on the head and both boys fell to the main floor of the gymnasium. Meyer was taken to the hospital in William Dull's automobile. The car of W. W. Smith, who was driving the car, was also damaged. Dr. A. C. Langan's office, where their cuts were dressed, neither of the boys was seriously hurt. Wellins, a substitute, was bruised by a club but did not require medical attention.

Charles Froek, son of former Sheriff S. E. Froek, emerges from the disgraceful affair a hero. After playing a brilliant game for the losing team, he took defeat manfully and was bitter towards his fellow players who took part in the unbecoming attack.

"I've played my last game with these boys," he is quoted as saying at the conclusion of the contest. "Each Saturday of Uniontown is criticized by the Connellville enthusiasts. The outburst in the High School building could not have happened, it is declared, if the proper discipline had been enforced among the players. Sutter's management of football affairs in Uniontown has caused much friction between the two schools. It was only after yielding many points in Uniontown's favor that it was possible to arrange an amiable working agreement between the two schools, and this is now threatened. After the splendid order preserved at the game here last year, Superintendent Ash, Principal Smith and others were content that an era of better feeling had been established. This confidence tumbled like a house of cards when the end came.

FIRE DESTROYS BARN ON THE FRICK BUCKEYE STOCK FARM

$2,000 Worth of Feed is Destroyed But Firemen Save Nearby Dwelling From Destruction.

Special to The Courier.

MT. PLEASANT, Nov. 25.—Fire destroyed the barn on the H. C. Frick Coke Company stock farm on the Mt. Pleasant-Scottdale road at Buckeye this morning, causing a loss which included $2,000 worth of feed. Two carloads of horses had been stabled there, but they and machinery were saved.

The flames threatened the homes of William Bither and Harry Kramer, a few feet from the barn, but the buildings were saved after all contents had been removed.

Employees were haling hay when the fire started at 11 o'clock. No water was there, and a fight with chemicals was made. The Scottdale fire department and H. C. Frick Company fire crews from Scottdale, Standard, Allen, Morwood and Buckeye responded to calls.

The child was burned about the arms and hands. Mrs. Wadding also suffered burns on the hands. Mr. Wadding is a B. & O. railroad man and was recently transferred to Pittsburgh.

MOTHER SAVES CHILD FROM DEATH; STAMPS OUT FLAMES

Girl's Clothing Ignites From Open Gas Stove and Serious Burns Result.

Anna Marian, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Wadding, former Connellville residents and now of Pittsburgh, had a narrow escape from being burned to death last week when her clothes ignited from an open gas stove. The flames were extinguished by the child's mother, who was attracted by her screams.

The child was burned about the arms and hands. Mrs. Wadding also suffered burns on the hands. Mr. Wadding is a B. & O. railroad man and was recently transferred to Pittsburgh.

THE THIRD HALF.

Football is a fine game, but it should be played in a spirit of sportsmanship and not in a spirit of hate.

The Uniontown Herald makes a lame apology for the conduct of Uniontown on Saturday, and as might be expected from a journal of big and bluff it blames everything that happened upon the Conneltsville football team and the other Conneltsville visitors. We are told that the Conneltsville boys were abusive; that they called the Uniontown people harsh names; that they were angry and offensive to the last degree; and that consequently they were attacked and beaten up by the Uniontown lads whose tender feelings were all ruffled up over the intense adjectives of the Conneltsville crowd.

The explanation lacks the elements of reason. The Conneltsville boys had no cause to be angry with anybody. They had won the game. They were pleased with themselves. They could afford to be generous with their opponents. It is not conceivable that they were the aggressors. The unbiased testimony indicates that they were not.

Plainly, logically and truthfully put, the near-murder of Saturday was a brutal exhibition of Uniontown's disappointed spirit. In baseball and other sporting events where money talks and brains is bought, Uniontown has been able to defeat Conneltsville from time to time, but in clean sport like high school football where it is boy for boy and the best boy wins the Conneltsville team won, and that was its crime.

Furthermore, it must be remembered that the Conneltsville boys were visitors; and that the obligation of hospitality rested upon Uniontown. The good citizens of Uniontown are doubtless alive to this fact and perhaps none regret more keenly than they the unfortunate circumstances which have resulted.

The Courier has no wish to be unjust to anybody, but the murderous attack upon the Conneltsville football players is something that calls for investigation and retribution. It is not only a matter of justice to the injured but also as a matter of justice to the fair name of Uniontown.

It should be made plain to all people that the third half should never be played.

Electricity is not a legal penalty in France and it is not a common device of them to use electric high-tension wires.

Secret societies honestly are sometimes carried to excess. Some individuals forget that their neighbors are not as wicked and brutal as they are themselves.

Charles Schwab is not a news hound, yet even this he cannot help but trip to Europe the independent and mercurial story breaks forth.

People who nowadays send their worded way are best advised to send bulletins from the ruins of reckless blunders and flying stones from the reckless hands of careless boys.

State road work has ceased for the winter and the county and city authorities are more hopeful of making better roads.

DEMOCRATIC DISSENSION

Lament in Senate Over the Division of the House.

One of the most bitter fights between the Democrats after March 4 will be for control of the Senate. The House of Representatives is now in the hands of the Democrats. Then the selection of the President and the Senate personnel of this important committee rest not only on the fact that the House of Representatives is in the hands of the Democrats, but also on the fact that the House of Representatives is in the hands of the Democrats.

Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, is the "maverick" member of the Finance Committee, who is the only Democrat on the committee. He is a close friend of the President. He is a close friend of the President. He is a close friend of the President.

Senator Gore, the blind Senator from Oklahoma, "original" Wilson man and strongly Progressive, is placed as a possible opponent to Simmons for the Finance Chairmanship. Gore is a close friend of the President. He is a close friend of the President. He is a close friend of the President.

WHY! Every Woman and Child Should

Buy Munsingwear

There are a lot of good reasons for buying Munsing Underwear besides the fact that it fits and covers the form perfectly. In the first place the buttons are sewed on to stay, the button holes are perfectly made and the trimmings of a superior quality. Each garment is cut with mathematical precision, shaped after the most approved models and the fit will not wash out. Only the finest yarns are used and the elastic flat seams cannot bind, bunch or unravel. Therefore the garment wears as long as the highest priced underwear. Women's union suits and two-piece suits with high neck, long sleeves and ankle length. Duchess neck, elbow sleeve and ankle length. Low neck, sleeveless and ankle length. Also Boys, Youths, Girls and Misses styles in a good assortment. The prices are so low that everyone can be a Munsing wearer.

Our Neckwear Display.

This store has a reputation for showing the daintiest and newest conceits in Neckwear of any store in town. Right now we have on display an exceptionally big assortment of up-to-the-minute styles that are a real attraction to anyone and most of the popular priced numbers are put up in Christmas boxes for early holiday shoppers. Nearly every approved feature in Neckwear styles will be found at this counter at prices most reasonable.

New Styles in Bags.

One lot of these for Christmas has arrived and considering the quality, they have been priced very low. Genuine Walrus and Seal, Goat Seal, Mesh and Beaded Bags of all kinds down to little chain, leather and hand painted bags for the little folks. These are in good demand for present day use and appropriate suggestions as gifts.

FULL SPEED AHEAD

THE BUSIEST DAYS OF THE YEAR

The Union Supply Company stores are now, having the busiest days of the year; they are pushing ahead at full speed, and we are arranging for a continuance of big business until after Christmas. The cold weather is making a great demand for all sorts of winter goods. The great piles or quantities of winter underwear, hosiery, sweaters, and such other winter garments that we are selling daily, and the great quantities of the same lines that are coming in daily are really enormous. But the object in talking about them here, is to impress you with the fact that we have the right kind of goods, and they are being sold at reasonable prices. Otherwise we would not have this big trade, and further we want to induce you to come to our store for these lines. We have the best 50c garment in underwear in the market. We have sweaters of all colors, all sizes from 50c to $5.00. We have all kinds of gloves; woolen in fancy colors; leather of all sorts and prices, short glove or with the gauntlet. We have the buck mits and gloves; the old fashioned kind; never rip. We want you to look at these goods, and look further through our general line of furnishings for men, women, boys and children. They are the most complete stocks you can find in any store in the coke region. We also want to call attention to our very handsome winter coats for women and girls, and for small children. Goods manufactured especially for us and sold to you at the very lowest price that can be quoted.

We Expect to Have Many Bargain Sales for Women During the Next Month

Daily, our stores will have some new attraction. One day it will be millinery; next day perhaps coats for women and children. Then we will change to dress goods likely; then likely a remnant day. Now if you will watch the stores; watch the sales they are daily advertising, and are prepared to take advantage of the numerous bargains, it is going to be a great money saving to you. Many remnants are accumulating always in large stocks. We cannot afford to keep them and our plan is to sell them out at one-half the original regular price. They often consist of short ends of dress goods, white goods, lace goods or perhaps gingham, or some other wash goods. Then it may be some odds and ends in skirts, shirt waists or some other useful garment. Watch the bargain sales; you cannot afford to miss them. It is a good opportunity to buy goods for Christmas gifts, but a better opportunity to buy goods you actually need daily; first-class in quality and much less than actual value.

FILIPINOS EXPECT SELF GOVERNMENT

The Islands Look For Independence Next Year.

FROM DEMOCRATIC CONGRESS

Hear That W. J. Bryan is to Be Governor General—Aguinaldo Comes to the Front as a Candidate For High Office.

Stagnation of development of the Philippines and demoralization of the Filipinos themselves will result from continued agitation by Democratic leaders in congress of projects for releasing the islands from the control of the United States in the opinion of army officers and others who have had administrative experience in the islands.

One bill introduced by the Democratic leaders of the house already is pending, and a serious effort is likely to be made to put it through at the special session, if one is called. This bill provides for limited independence at once and complete independence by 1920.

In a demonstration which took place at Manila immediately after the election of Woodrow Wilson to the presidency officials here see the first indication of what is to come. More than 20,000 Filipinos, it is reported from Manila, indulged in the wildest jubilation over the Democratic victory and listened to addresses in which the rule of the United States was declared as practically at an end.

Aguinaldo Active. It is regarded as significant here that on this occasion Aguinaldo, the leader of the Filipino insurrection following the war with Spain, appeared publicly for the first time since his capture by the American troops in the islands. He addressed the gathering in the first political speech he has made since the end of his insurrection. It is believed here that this action on the part of Aguinaldo means that from now on he will be in the front ranks of the aspirants for political honors which Democratic proposals have led the Filipinos to believe to be almost within their grasp.

It has been learned that since Wilson's election the Filipino press has been busy sketching the future, all assuming that the Democratic administration will announce for their independence quickly. These newspapers have already informed their readers that W. J. Bryan, who for years has been the champion in the United States of Filipino independence, is to be governor general after March 4 and that Flore Warren, for a time prominent as a leader of the anti-imperialist movement, is to be vice president of the Philippine commission. The group of would be political leaders in Manila and other places in the Philippines are already busy, officials here are informed, with their propaganda preliminary to getting voters into line to support them for the offices which they believe the Democrats will open to them.

Capital Waits. The possibility of the islands being soon turned over to the Filipinos has already caused a cessation in the flow of capital to the Philippines. Americans who have already invested in the Philippines declare they will not venture another cent in the islands' industries until they know whether or not American control is to be continued.

On his recent trip to the Pacific Mr. General Leonard Wood, former commander of the Philippines division, was besieged by Americans interested in the Philippines, who said they were planning to sever all business connections in the islands if the uncertainty as to the continuation of American control continued much longer. Decisive action by the Democrats in favor of freeing the Philippines within the next few years will result in a general exodus from the islands of Americans and other foreign investors, according to reports received here.

It is believed that the Democratic leaders may fight shy of granting the Filipinos immediate independence or even passing the Jones bill, which proposes to give them limited self government for eight years, to be followed in 1920 by absolute independence. It is expected, however, that the Democrats will compromise by promising to give the Filipinos independence on a specified date, thus committing future administrations to make good on a pledge made by this congress.

Men who have spent many years in the Philippines declare that the number of capable, educated men among the Filipinos is very small indeed as compared to their total population of 8,000,000 people. This small group is already active in a political way and has shown that it exerts a powerful influence on the vast body of the people, who believe the most absurd statements made to them by such leaders.

Snowshoes For Horses. Snowshoes for Chicago horses will be ready for the first fall of snow or frozen streets. The shoes, furnished by the Chicago Society of Humane Friends, are made of carpet and canvas and are intended to be slipped over a fallen animal's feet so that he can get up. Traffic policemen will carry sets of four for the use of drivers whose horses fall.

AN EFFECTIVE TRIO.

The Stout Man, the Parson With a White Tie and the Corkscrew.

The stout man produced a bottle of his seat mates—three of them—smiled in joyous relief.

"Who's gotta corkscrew?" he demanded.

Nobody responded. The stout man looked around. Across the aisle was a thin person in a shabby black suit and a white tie. He was reading, in a short-sighted way, a gilt top volume with a limp cover.

The stout man leaned forward.

"Betcha a tenner th' parson has a corkscrew," he hoarsely whispered.

"Done," said the man with the gray side whiskers.

The stout man leaned across the aisle.

"Beg pardon," he said, "but have you such a thing as a corkscrew about you?"

The man with the white tie hesitated. For a moment he seemed pained. Then he flushed a little, and reaching down into his pocket drew out the article they wanted.

Ten minutes later the stout man said he was going back to look for a friend. At the next station the white tie man gathered up his goods and chattels and left the car. Then came the conductor.

"Did Fatty Frost and 'the parson' show you any of their team work?" he laughingly asked.

"Team work!" echoed the side whiskered man.

"They're the cleverest swindling pair in the country," said the conductor, and passed on.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

RED TAPE AND A BATH.

Curious Experience of a Visitor in a Little French Town.

St. Lo, a little town in the Manche department in France, has no public bath house such as those found in most French towns and cities, for the private bath in France is yet, as it were, in its infancy.

The young master of the town house in the Vire, but the 12,000 other inhabitants think themselves above such a thing as a bath. Visitors can get a bath, it is true, but they must order four liters of water, all that they are permitted, and it is taken to them.

Not long ago a visitor in the town wished to take a bath. He went to the hospital to ask permission to take a bath there, as in Brittany this is the custom in towns where there is no public accommodation. The visitor's request was received rather coldly, and he was told that he would have to make his request in writing to the directors of the hospital. This he did and patiently awaited a response. None came, and the visitor left town.

Two days later the response came and followed him from town to town throughout France, not catching up with him until he had returned to Paris.

The response was as follows: "M. — is exceptionally authorized to take a bath at the hospital on condition that he is able to justify by a medical ordinance that this medication is necessary to his state of health."—Exchange.

A Gentle Rebuke.

Lady Dorothy Nevill in her reminiscences relates how Queen Victoria once rebuked a certain mistress of the robes for unpunctuality. A day and hour had been appointed for a public ceremony in which the queen was to take part. The hour had arrived, and of all the court the duchess alone was absent.

The queen gave vent more than once to her impatience, and at last, just as she was about to enter her carriage without her first lady of honor, the duchess in breathless haste made her appearance, stammering out faint words of excuse. "My dear duchess," said the queen, smiling, "I think you must have a bad watch," and she unlocked from her neck the chain of a magnificent watch which she herself wore and passed it round the neck of the offender.

How Some Turks Tell Time.

Though comparatively few of the natives of Turkey own watches, yet they have an ingenious way of approximating the time, and some of them hit it with considerable accuracy. They locate two cardinal points of the compass and then, holding their hands together in such a manner that the forefingers point upward and in opposite directions, they observe the shadow cast.

In the morning or evening at certain known hours one finger or the other will point directly at the sun. A comparison of the two shadows will determine the hours between.

The Struggles of a Sculptor.

Auguste Rodin, the French sculptor, had a great struggle with poverty and adverse criticism in his youth. Of an episode of this early period a writer says: "With that inflexible will and singleness of purpose that never failed him throughout his career the young sculptor set himself to express in clay, marble or bronze his conception of life and art. He used his leisure in working at nighttime in a deserted stable he had transformed into a studio at his wonderful mask of 'The Man With the Broken Nose.' After eighteen months of hard and patient labor he finished this mask and sent it to the salon. It took the hanging committee fourteen years to discover any merit in the work, for it was rejected in 1864 and finally accepted only in 1878."

Both Satisfied.

"I should like to break it off, but I can't bear to give up this diamond ring."

"Then why don't you tell him so?" He told me he'd be willing to lose the ring if he could get out of the engagement."

The ONLOOKER BY WILBUR D. NESBIT

A Man's Fall Bonnet Recipe

First you get your price-mark—and be sure it's high enough. Lay it carefully aside, then choose the other stuff.

Take some velvet, and some wire, some ribbons and some lace. Twist the wire and weave till you've got it for your bonnet.

Save the price-mark carefully—he sure that it is high. Get a plume and drop it so it strikes an ear or eye.

Put a glass-ware buckle on, and, later, if you choose, Grab some artificial blooms of most unearthly hues.

Mix the whole thing thoroughly, and place saying: "There, with another twist, and puff it's just what you should wear."

Now the crucial test has come; be steady on your feet. Put the price mark on the hat and then it is complete.

Solving the Cryptogram. "I can't make it out at all," said Mrs. Medderrass, after an hour's study of the letter her husband had brought home from the post office.

"Seems to be 'I'm some one who knows us, though,'" commented Mr. Medderrass, taking the letter in his hand and peering at it curiously.

"Oh, yes, it does that," said his wife. "I can understand what it says, all right and clear enough. It speaks of all the family an' 'bout things in th' house an' all that, but I do declare I don't know nobody o' th' name 'at's signed to it. Who on earth's 'Lysare Marie Wyss' anyhow?"

"Looks like some further to me," mused Mr. Medderrass, weighing the letter meditatively on his fingers. Suddenly he slapped his thigh and exclaimed:

"Tell ye who 'tis. It's our niece, Mary Liz Wiggins—she that is off to boardin' school this winter. By jing! I reckon she's took on some o' the newfangled ways o' spellin' names."

Tersapochraean Finish. "I could just die dancing!" avowed the maiden fair to see, who has been two-stopping on the hotel piazza.

"Ah," smiles her escort, "as Shakespeare might have said, you could 'double-shuffle off this mortal coil.'"

At first she was inclined to ask for an introduction to Mr. Shakespeare, but she contented herself with assuring her escort that he was just dread full.

Aggressive Measures. The head of the railroad trust glared at the head of the theatrical trust.

"You must," he declares, "compel your employees to cease wearing out my ties."

It was this dire threat that caused so many hamlets to go without their Shakespeares, and so many Hamlets to cease going at all.

As She Imagined It. "Listen here, maw," said Mr. Medderrass. "Here's a piece in the paper 'bout a New York fellow that has 400 pairs o' pants, 350 coats, 600 vests, 200 shirts and 1,500 ties."

"Goodness me!" ejaculated Mrs. Medderrass. "He must look like a clothin' store out for a walk when he dresses up in all them clothes."

Query Answered. "Gentle Annie" writes: "Please tell me how to drive a horse with one arm."

"We never saw a one-armed horse, Annie."

His Judgment. "Woman," said the observant person, "doesn't always know what she is talking about."

"Woman," put in the wise person, "doesn't care—so long as she gets to talk."

END LIVER TROUBLE WITHOUT CALOMEL

Untrustworthy Drug, Thought to Loosen the Teeth, Now Made Absolutely Unnecessary.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are the mild, but surest laxative known, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. They are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. Dr. Edwards has been calomel's uncompromising foe. His efforts to banish it brought out these little olive-colored tablets, a rare combination of vegetable compounds mixed with olive oil. These pleasant, harmless little tablets do all the good that calomel does but have no bad after-effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel at all, but to let Olive Tablets take their place.

Most headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Olive Tablets when you feel "luggy" and "heavy." Note how they "clear" the clouded brain and how they "perk up" the spirits.

At 10c and 25c a box. "Every Little Olive Tablet has a movement all its own."

CHAPTER XXVII.

The glow in Hamlin's eyes implied the other to go on, and explain fully.

"Lord, I know how you feel, strange, an' I reckon, if you was to plug me right yere it wouldn't more'n even matters up. But yer listen fust afore yer shoot. That Kiowa Kiack Smoke was sent on ahead, an' got yere afore the storm. He said them other was 'bout four hours behind, an' headin' fer this yere cabin to make camp. They wa'n't hurryin' none, fer they didn't suspect they was bein' tracked. Well, that was my chance; what I'd been campin' out yere months a-waitin' fer, I didn't expect ter git nuthin' back, y' understand; all I wanted was ter KILL that damn skunk, an' square accounts. It looked ter me then like I had him on the hip. He didn't know I was in the kinty; all I had to do was lay out in the hills, an' take a pot-shot at him afore he saw me."

"And get the girl and the money." "As God is my witness, I never thought 'bout that. I just wanted ter shag him. I know it sounds sorter cowardly, but that fellow 's a gun-lighter, an' he had two Injuns with him. Anyhow that was my notion, an' as soon as Black Smoke went lopin' up the valley, I loaded up, an' climbed them bluffs, to whar I had a good look-out along the north trail. I laid out thar all night. The storm come up, an' I might nigh freeze, but snuggled down inter the snow an' stuck. When yer can't get a killer fust on, yer goin' through hell an' high water ter get yer man. That's how I felt. Well, just 'bout daylight an outfit showed up. With my eyes half froze over, an' ther storm blowin' the snow in my face, I couldn't see much—nuthin' but outlines o' horses an' men. But thar was four o' 'em, an' a big fellow ahead breakin' trail. Course I thought it was Le Fevre; I wa'n't lookin' fer no one else, an' soon as I dared, I let drive. He flopped over dead as a door nail, an' then I popped away a couple o' times at the others. One fell down, an' I thought I got him, but didn't wait to make sure; just turned and hoofed it fer cover, knowin' the storm would hide my trail. I'd got the man I wait after, an' just natchally didn't give er whoop what became o' the rest. As I went down the bank I heard 'em shootin', so I knowed none was alive yet, an' it would be better fer me to crawl inter my hole an' lie still."

Hamlin sat motionless, staring at the man, not quite able to comprise head his character. Killing was part o' the western code, and he could appreciate Hughes' eagerness for revenge, but the underlying cowardice in the man was almost bewildering. Finally he got up, swept the revolver on the bench into his pocket, walked over, and picked up the gun.

"Now, Hughes," he said quietly, "I'll talk, and you listen. In my judge ment you are a miserable quaking cur, and I am going to trust you just so far as I can watch you. I suppose I ought to shoot you where you are and have done with it. You killed one o' the best men who ever lived, a friend o' mine, Sam Wasson."

"What?"

"Sam Wasson, a government scout. Hughes dropped his face into his hands.

"Good Lord! I knew him!"

The Sergeant drew a deep breath, and into his face there came a look almost of sympathy.

"Then you begin to realize the sort o' fool you are," he went on soberly. "They don't make better men out here; his little finger was worth more than your whole body. But killing you won't bring Sam back, and besides I reckon you've told me the straight story, an' his shooting was an accident in a way. Then you're more useful to me just now alive than you would be dead. My name is Hamlin, sergeant James Cavalry, and I am here after that man Le Fevre. We trailed his outfit from Dodge until the storm struck us, and then came straight through traveling by compass. I did not know the man's name was Le Fevre until you told me; up in Kansas he is known as Dupont."

"That's it; that's the name he took when he sold the cattle."

"The officer robbed and killed was Major McDonald, and it is his daughter they hold. The fellow Dupont quarreled with and shot was a desert-er named Connor. We found the body. Now when do you suppose Le Fevre is?"

Hamlin started into the fire, nervously pulling his beard.

"Well, I'd say in west yere somewhere along the Cimarron. Tain't likely he had a compass, an' the wind was from the north-east. Best they could do, the ponies would drift. The Injuns would keep the general direction, o' course, storm 'er no storm, an' Gene is some plainsman himself, but that blizzard would shoot 'em off all the same. I reckon they're under the banks ten mile or more, up thar. An' soon as there's a change in weather, they'll ride for Black Kettle's camp. That's my guess, mister."

Hamlin turned the situation over deliberately in his mind, settled that

Hughes had reviewed the possibilities correctly. If Le Fevre's party had got through at all, then that was the most likely spot for them to be hiding in. They would have drifted beyond doubt, farther than Hughes supposed, probably, as he had been sheltered from the real violence of the wind as it raged on the open plain. They might be fifteen, even twenty miles away, and so completely drifted in as to be undiscoverable except through accident. What course then was best to pursue? The storm was likely to continue violent for a day, perhaps two days longer. His horses were exhausted, and Carroll helpless. It might not even be safe to leave the latter alone. Yet if the frozen man could be left in the hut to take care of himself and the ponies, would there be any hope of success in an effort to proceed up the river on foot? He could make Hughes go—that wasn't the difficulty—but probably they couldn't cover two miles a day through the snowdrifts. And, even if they did succeed in getting through in time to intercept the fugitives, the others would possess every advantage—both position for defense, and horses on which to escape. Hughes, lighting his pipe, confident now in his own mind that he was personally safe, seemed to some the problem troubling the Sergeant.

"I reckon I know this kentry well 'nough," he said lazily, "fer give yer a pointer er two. I've rounded up long-horned west o' yere. Them fellows ain't goin' to strike out fer the Canadian till after the storm quits. By that time yer ponies is rusted up in better shape than theirs will be, and we kin strike 'cross to the south-west. We're bound either to hit 'em, or ride 'cross thar trail."

"But the woman!" protested Hamlin, striding across the floor. "What may happen to her in the meanwhile? She is an Eastern girl unaccustomed to this life—a lady."

"Yer don't need worry none 'bout that. If she's the right kind she'll stan' more'n a man when she has to. I reckon it won't be none too pleasant 'long with Gene an' them Cheyenne bucks, but if she's pulled through so far, thar ain't nuthin' special goin' ter happen till they git to the Injun camp."

"You mean her fate will be decided in council?"

"Sure; that's Cheyenne law. Le Fevre knows it, an' ol' Kolata would knife him in a minute if he got gay. He's a devil all right—that ol' buck—but he's afraid o' Black Kettle, an' thar won't be no harm done to the gal."

The Sergeant walked over to the fire, and stared down into the red embers, striving to control himself. He realized the truth of all Hughes said, and yet had to fight fiercely his inclination to hasten to her rescue. The very thought of her alone in those ruthless hands was torture. There was no selfishness in the man's heart, no hope of winning this girl for himself, yet he knew now that he loved her; that for him she was the one woman in all the world. Her face was in his memory; the very sound of the wind seemed her voice calling him. But the real man in him—the plainsman instinct—conquered the impetuosity of the lover. There must be no mistake made—no rash, hopeless effort. Better delay, then, ultimate failure, and Hughes' plan was the more practical way.

"You're right, old man. We'll wait," he said sternly. "Now to get ready. Have you a corral?"

The other made a gesture with his hand.

"Twenty rod 'low, under the bluffs."

"Well, give the horses down, feed and water them. But fust come with me; there is a half-frozen man up yonder."

They plowed through the snow together, choking and coughing in the thick swirl of flakes that beat against their faces. The three horses, powdered white, stood tails to the storm, with head to the bluff, while the drifts completely covered Carroll. He was sleeping, warm in the blankets, and the two men picked him up and stumbled along with their burden to the shelter of the cabin. Then Hughes faced the blizzard alone, and ing the horses to the corral, while Hamlin ministered to the semi-conscious soldier, laying him out upon a pile of soft skins, and vigorously rubbing his limbs to restore circulation. The man was stupid from exposure, and in some pain, but exhibited no dangerous symptoms. When wrapped again in his blankets, he fell instantly asleep. Hughes returned, mantled with snow, and, as the door opened, the howl of the storm swept by.

"No better outside?"

"Lord, no! Worse, if anything. Wind more east, sweepin' the snow up the valley. We'll be plum shot up in an hour, I reckon. Horses all right, though."

In the silence they could hear the fierce beating against the door, the shrieking of the storm-blast encompassing them about.

CHAPTER XXIX.

The Chase.

Hamlin never forgot those two days and nights of waiting, while the storm roared without and the clouds of drifting snow made any dream of advance impossible. Trained as he was to patience, the delay left marks in his face, and his nerves throbbled with pain. His mind was with her constantly, even in moments of uneasy sleep, picturing her condition, unprotected from the storm and protected only by Le Fevre and his two Indian allies. If he could only reach them, only strike a blow for her release, it would be such a relief. The uncertainty weighed upon him, giving unrestricted play to his imagination, and, incidentally awakening a love for the girl so overwhelming as almost to frighten him. He had fought this feeling heretofore, deliberately, satisfied that such ambition was hopeless. He would not attempt to lower her to his level, nor give her the unhappiness of knowing that he dared misconstrue her frank friendliness into more tender. But these misfortunes had changed the entire outlook. Now he hung all pretense aside, eager to place his life on the altar to save her. Even a dim flame of hope began blazing in his heart—hope that he might yet wring from Le Fevre a confession that would clear his name. He knew his man at last—knew him, and would track him now with all the pitiless ingenuity of a savage. Once he could stand erect, absolved of disgrace, a man again among men, he would ignore the uniform of the ranks, and go to her with all the pride of his race. Ay! and down in his heart he knew that she would welcome his coming; that her eyes would not look at the uniform, but down into the depths of his own.

He thought of it all as he paced the floor, or stared into the fire, while outside the wind howled and plied the snow against the cabin front, and whirling in mad bursts up the valley. It would be death to face the fury of it on those open plains. There was nothing left him but to swear, and pace back and forth. Twice he and Hughes fought their way to the corral, found the horses sheltered in a little cove, and brought them food and water. The struggle to accomplish this was sufficient proof of the impossibility of going farther. Exhausted and breathless they staggered back into the quietness of the cabin, feeling as though they had been beaten by clubs. Once, desperate to attempt something, Hamlin suggested searching for the bodies of Wasson and Wedo, but Hughes shook his head, staring at the other as though half believing him demented. The Sergeant strode to the door and looked out into the smother of snow; then came back without a word of protest.

Carroll improved steadily, complaining of pain where the frost had nipped exposed flesh, yet able to sit up, and eat heartily. There remained a numbness in his feet and legs, however, which prevented his standing alone, and both the others realized that he would have to be left behind when the storm abated. Hughes would go without doubt; on this point the Sergeant was determined. He did not altogether like or trust the man; he could not blot from memory the cowardly shot which killed Wasson, nor entirely rid himself of a fear that he, himself, had failed an old comrade, in not revenging his death; yet one thing was clear—the man's hatred for Le Fevre made him valuable. Treacherous as he might be by nature, now his whole soul was bent on revenge. Moreover he knew the lay of the land, the trail the fugitives would follow, and to some extent Black Kettle's camp. Little by little Hamlin drew from him every detail of Le Fevre's life in the cattle country, becoming more and more convinced that both men were thieves, their herds largely stolen through connivance with Indians. Undoubtedly Le Fevre was the bigger rascal of the two, and possessed greater influence because of his marriage into the tribe.

It was the second midnight when the wind died down. Hamlin, sleeping fitfully, seemed to sense the change; he rose, forced the door open, and peered out eagerly. There was lightness to the sky, and all about, the unbroken expanse of snow sparkled in cold crystals. Nothing broke the white desolation but the dark waters of the river still, unfrozen, and the gaunt limbs of the cottonwoods, now standing naked and motionless. The silence was profound, seeming almost painful after the wild fury of the past days. He could hear the soft purr of the water, and Carroll's heavy breathing. And it was cold, bitterly cold, the chill of it penetrating to his very bones. But for that he had no care—his mind had absorbed the one important fact; the way was open, they could go. He shook Hughes roughly into wakefulness, giving utterance to sharp, terse orders, as though he dealt with a man of his own troop.

Connellsville is Attacked After Winning Game

CONNELLSVILLE HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL TEAM.

HIGH SCHOOL BOYS
DEFEAT UNIONTOWN

It seems that the effort will result in a victory for the High School boys of Connellsville. The team, which has been defeated by Uniontown in the past, is now being coached by a new coach, Mr. A. S. Hagan, a member of the team. He has been coaching the team since the beginning of the season, and has been successful in winning several games. The team is now in a position to win the championship, and is expected to do so.

The game itself was a very close one. The Connellsville team was led by their captain, who was a very good player. He was able to lead his team to victory, and was a very important player in the game. The game was a very exciting one, and was watched by a large crowd of spectators.

The Connellsville team was very well coached, and was able to win the game. The team was very well organized, and was able to win the game. The team was very well coached, and was able to win the game.

The Most Wonderful Sale of Suits
for Women and Girls Connellsville Has Had This Season.

Madam, this is November, not January. Yet these suits are offered to you at January prices—in fact, at nearly one-half and one-third less than these self-same garments would be priced elsewhere.

First of all, they are good suits—none better made at the several prices. Original prices meant full money's worth!

Then, the variety! Cloth suits in richly colored, warm woolsens, corals, roys and velvet in true winter tones. Every style creation is here—square-cut, plain, strictly tailored suits for shopping, traveling—and for the woman of business. Rounded corner or cutaway styles, with those little touches so dear to feminine hearts. Norfolk suits for girls in school, misses and young women—for jaunty and informal wear. And more elaborate suits for matinee, calling and formal wear. In a nut shell the suits you can buy here at the lowest prices quoted this season, are for women of every build; for girls and young women; for dress on any occasion.

No matter what a woman wants to pay for a winter suit, she can be certain of getting a finer quality than if she had chosen it sooner—some of these were bought very late in the season—at a reduction, of course. But you may be very sure they came up to the Wright-Metzler standard. Those suits will, in a way, slightly compensate us for the radical reductions all through the stock.

Please Note in Particular

- that every suit in our stock is reduced;
- that every suit in stock was bought this season;
- that none are left-overs, rejects, misfits or undesirable.

Our Entire Suit Stock in Three Groups:

In Group 1

Are the snappiest, classiest suits that came out of New York this season. Dashing cutaway models, daintily embellished sorts—all the suits that have some little trimming conceit dear to every woman's heart. Still, there isn't a "loud" or undesirable suit in the group—merely tasteful, individual models in the best styles and colors of the season. Reductions are as follows:

- $33.34 for $50.00 Suits
- $30.00 for $45.00 Suits
- $23.34 for $35.00 Suits
- $19.75 for $30.00 Suits
- $16.67 for $25.00 Suits

In Group 2

Are equally stylish suits, although cut along lines less prominent than those of group one. These we term "staple models" and the style change of a season effects them but little. In this group are sizes for women, misses and girls. Garments are plain tailored or with a little trimming—some are Norfolk style.

- $29.75 for $40.00 Suits
- $27.75 for $37.50 Suits
- $26.25 for $35.00 Suits
- $22.25 for $29.75 Suits
- $19.75 for $25.00 Suits
- $14.25 for $18.75 Suits

In Group 3

Are suits distinct in size from the other two groups. These are between sizes—35, 37, 39, 41 to 47—and are cut fuller over the hips and abdomen; shorter under arms and in the waist. They are to fit women inclined to stoutness. Models are plain tailored, of serges, wide wales and men's wear—worsted.

- $42.50 for $50.00 Suits
- $38.25 for $45.00 Suits
- $34.00 for $40.00 Suits
- $29.75 for $35.00 Suits
- $25.00 for $29.75 Suits
- $21.00 for $25.00 Suits

Nine Women Out of Ten Want
Silk Waists
$5 to $12.50 Values Here for $2.90

Brisk waist selling left broken lots to the extent of 53 very pretty—and very stylish—waists in sizes 34 to 42. There are high neck and long sleeve models; and low neck with kimono sleeves; or set-in sleeves. Yokes are lace or self-material. Models are plain tailored or peplum style—and some very fancy. Materials are silks—plain or plaid; serge silk, chiffon, brocade, messaline and soft taffeta. Choice $2.98 for values $5.00 to $12.50.

Nearly a Hundred Wonderful Silk
Dresses in a Sale That Reduces
Their Prices

Ready—fresh and lovely—none of them will be here much longer! There are graceful, charming afternoon gowns, lovely crepe meteors, rich velvets, corduroys, messalines, colicenes and serges—in different models and all the colors wanted—navy, black, brown and light tones.

Does it not read like a list of the things that are most in fashion?

As the styles, you may expect those which a woman of good taste would select for her afternoon and less formal wearing—graceful new models that are simple, attractive and daintily feminine. You'd pay more than their present prices to have them made. The goods are of first quality; the making is what you will expect; and the trimmings are in good taste—and all are very sharply reduced—prices were printed in Friday and Saturday papers.
